Fumigated Mail – Honolulu February 2, 1900 duplex on both sides. From December 12, 1899 until April 30, 1900 Honolulu mail was treated with sulfur fumes in a futile attempt to stem the bubonic plague.

A ship captain under quarantine in the harbor writes, "If you can ship ___ Rice & flour from my vessel in the harbour do (sic) to plague...." While envelope corners were clipped allowing vapors to penetrate the contents, there was no advantage to clipping postal cards. The holes on this card are from an office filing system, not the fumigation.

The 1¢ 1882 postal card, UX1, posted APR 17 Wailuku, Maui, to Haiku. Magnificent strike of the Wailuku 36mm postmark, MH285.012 (R2), with year date "1884" just discernable. The postmark is exceptional in that it shows the entire outer ring, particularly so because it is a late use, a month later than reported in the Burns update. One of the rarest Maui postmarks and an uncommon use to the small village of Haiku.

With regard to dead Chinese the money on deposit will probably be paid to the Chinese Consul, who will settle with the relatives. As to #5312 I cannot as yet say when the matter will be acted upon, as there is nothing in the law regarding dead Chinese.

Yours truly,
Wm. Taylor,
Secretary.
