A Wilson Roulette

(A Private Perforation of 1929)

This philatelic variety was created in October, 1929, when a large accumulation of mint imperforate sheets, left with a Pittsburgh bank, were taken up by the bank on an unpaid loan. In order to get their value, they were privately rouletted for postage use, and after a portion of the lot were thus used, they came to philatelic attention.

The greater portion were lost to philately when used on non-philatelic mail, and it was only through the good fortune of their being noticed by Eli T. Parker, a stamp dealer of Bethlehem, Penna., that they are today known.

These stamps are genuine when bearing the rouletted perforations characteristic of these stamps, and when each individual stamp is signed in pencil on the back, thus:

United States Test Coil

Sent for DUMMY COILS

We have seen these advertised in this very magazine for several dollars per pair, simply because they are Bureau manufacture, and used for testing in P.O. vending machines. They are gummed, rotary ridges, and exactly like official stamps except for design. (They even come in the color of the then 3c and 4c stamps). One pair of each, together with a privately made testing coil stamp pair mint, the latter over a half century old, for $2 per set of 6 stamps, if a stamped addressed envelope is enclosed.
