MAP OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI.

GENERAL NATHANIEL LYON, U. S. A.

KILLED AT THE BATTLE OF WILSON'S CREEK, August 10, 1861.

NATHANIEL LYON, whose brief but brilliant career in Missouri has placed his name in the highest rank among our military commanders, was a native of Connecticut, born, as he himself gayly remarked, the night before his death, between two rocks,—his father's house standing between two rocky hills,—in a secluded spot, at Ashford, in Windham county, on the road to Hampton, out of the general route of travel, and far from all the busy stir and excitement of the cities and towns. He was born on the 14th day of July, 1819, being the seventh child,—his father, Amasa Lyon, a worthy farmer, respected by all his neighbors. His mother, Kezia, was a daughter of Lieutenant Daniel Knowlton, a noble veteran, who served through the old French war and the Revolution, and lived till 1825,—long enough to see his grandson evince the qualities most essential for the profession in which his family had won renown. Not only had his grandfather so long worn the harness of war, but young Lyon could claim with ancestral pride his close relationship to one of the names which stand in brightest colors in our revolutionary history; for Colonel Thomas Knowlton, who so gallantly held his own at the rail fence on Bunker's Hill, and afterwards redeeming
